issues related to segregation and integration are major responsibilities and challenges for cities and a segregated urban environment can be understood as a symptom of wider social injustices in this brief overview of current research on residential segregation the focus is on structural reasons to segregation this means that it is planning policies and tendencies in socio economic development that are discussed rather than specific social integration measures and projects but there is an obvious arena where these two approaches to segregation meet and that is in the local community and its spaces for social interaction this is important to keep in mind that the integrated city is both a result of strategies and initiatives on a micro scale in the neighbourhood and between individuals and initiatives and development on a macro scale this report is part of a theme on segregation within the nordic collaboration programme for effective integration and inclusion of refugees and immigrants in the nordic countries read more at integrationnorden.org nabo is a project launched under the Swedish presidency in the Nordic Council of Ministers 2018. The project is run by the Swedish Agency for Youth and Civil Society over the period 2018–2020 and seeks to make the youth perspective visible through the words of Nordic youth. Young people's voices will be heard in questions regarding their lives and based on that knowledge they will be given the opportunity to participate and influence political decisions. Young people are asked to describe their everyday lives and how they perceive their opportunities and obstacles from their stories. nabo builds a framework of success factors for social inclusion in the Nordic region. This study is based on six focus group interviews with youth in different places in Iceland. In this report you find the result from the Icelandic study. Similar studies are carried out in the other Nordic countries and in the Faroe Islands, Greenland and Åland.

For over twenty years the Nordic Council of Ministers Arctic Co-operation Programme has contributed to enhancing knowledge about the Arctic region. The current Nordic Arctic Co-operation Programme 2018–2021 is focused on four overall areas: people, planet and prosperity as well as partnerships as a cross-cutting theme, closely connected to the UN Sustainable Development Goals and the Paris Agreement. The programme supports international research projects and other collaborative efforts to support sustainable development in the Arctic. This folder gives a short introduction to the programme with examples of project results.

The Nordic region is attractive for a long time. The Nordic region has been attracting international recognition thanks to unique achievements in cuisine, design, films, music and literature. We find success stories like these in all the Nordic countries and many of them have a common Nordic format, a Nordic trademark. However, the Nordic region first started to distinguish itself on the international stage in the aftermath of the financial crisis. It showed that the Nordic welfare and political model was once again capable of renewing itself. Countries around the world then began to discuss whether our model could serve as a possible buffering and stabilizing factor in an increasingly uncertain global economy. We in the Nordic region are also facing a number of serious challenges. We are far from perfect but it is perhaps this imperfection that makes us fascinating.
